How many homes were approved?

A KPMG report's residential approval figures, tested against official counts

THE CLAIM

"…8,716 residential units were granted approval in 2024, representing a 7.4% increase compared with 2023."

KPMG, Construction Industry and Property Market Report 2025, section 2.1

Dec 2025; prepared for the Malta Development Association.

Planning Authority series; NSO quarterly releases read second-hand.

VERDICT

LARGELY SUPPORTED

Figures match; "permits" = units.

SUPPORTED | LARGELY SUPPORTED | NOT SUBSTANTIATED | MISLEADING | CONTRADICTED

MAIN RESULTS

8,716

2024 reproduces

The Planning Authority's approved dwelling units: 8,716 in 2024, 8,112 in 2023.

+7.4%

The growth rate reproduces

8,716 / 8,112 is +7.45%. Eurostat's narrower index of dwellings permitted: +7.3%.

5,170

Units, not permits

January–June 2025: the NSO's two quarters sum to 5,170 dwellings (+9.7%, second-hand). Building permits: about 1,023.

12,325

The forecast came true

KPMG expected 2025 to surpass 2024. The Planning Authority's 2025 figure is 12,325, +41%.

1

One unexplained unit

The NSO's 2024 quarters sum to 8,717, one more than 8,716 (second-hand).

FAIR TO SAY

Every number in section 2.1 matches official counts. The noun "permits" for dwelling units is the only loose wording.

WHAT WOULD SETTLE IT

- ☐ The NSO's Q1 and Q2 2025 releases, read directly.
- ☐ The Planning Authority file re-read to confirm 2025 is a full year.
- ☐ KPMG's note on "permits" versus dwelling units.
